

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A display apparatus comprises a three-dimensional display device, an image generation device, an image specification device and a control device. The three-dimensional display device has a plurality of display surfaces. The image generation device generates images to be displayed on the three-dimensional display device. The image specification device enables at least part of an image, which is displayed on the three-dimensional display device, to be specified. The control device controls the three-dimensional display device to display, of the images generated, an image portion specified by the image specification device, on one of the plurality of display surfaces and display, of the images generated, an image portion, which is not displayed on the one of the plurality of display surfaces, on another display surface of the plurality of display surfaces.